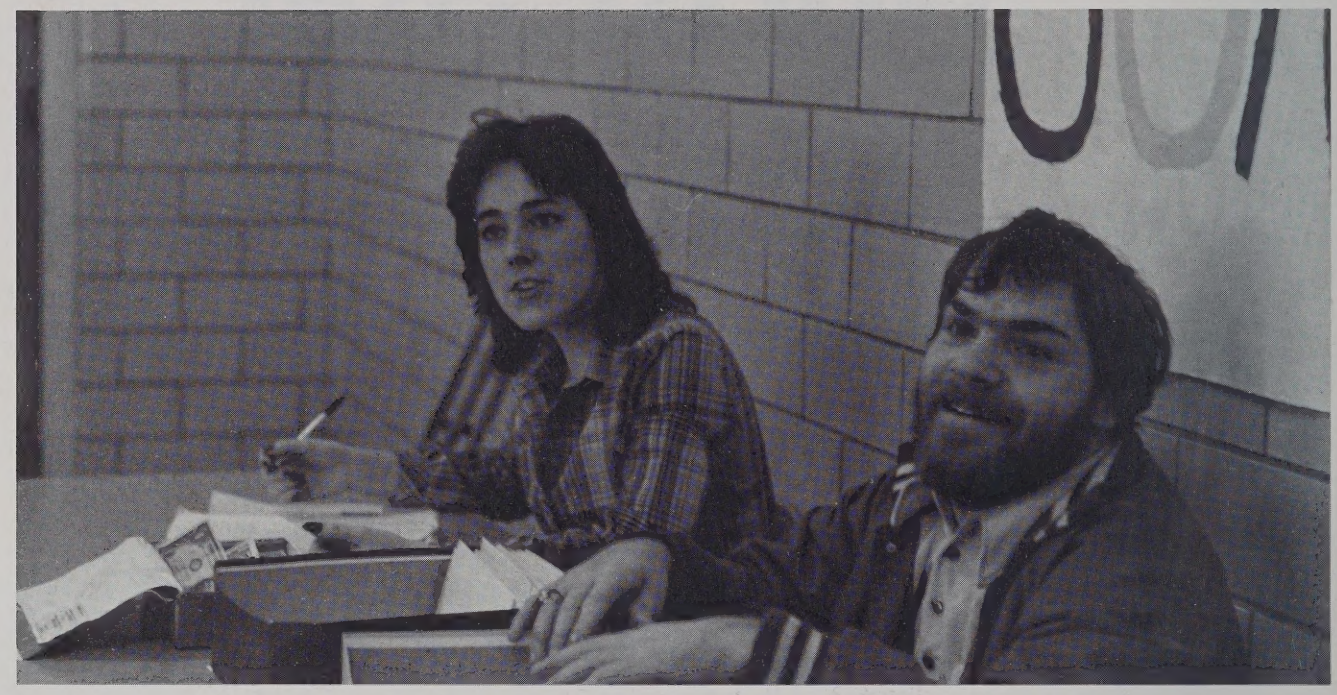
A Look Inside

Innovative Projects Initiated

Lisa Zuckerman and Frankie Durst pass out computer letters to students interested in finding compatible mates.



Ideas seemed to arise often, as many groups sponsored new projects at Northern. The band held the first annual Stadium Review with the cheerleaders, football players, drill team, and the Homecoming court working together, creating a sucessful outing. Student Luncheons were introduced by the administration to let students voice their opinions on controversial topics that arose throughout the year. The Student Council backed the March of Dimes, as 49 people walked in support of preventing birth defects. On Valentines Day, computer dating letters were available to students for a small fee. Also a computer class was added to the elective cirriculum for seniors.

Welcoming the crowd to the Stadium Review, Carissa Selby, Kim Moore, and Sherry Kolbfleisch preform a floor cheer.

By Several Groups

Students express their opinions and ideas to Mr. Green at a student luncheon.

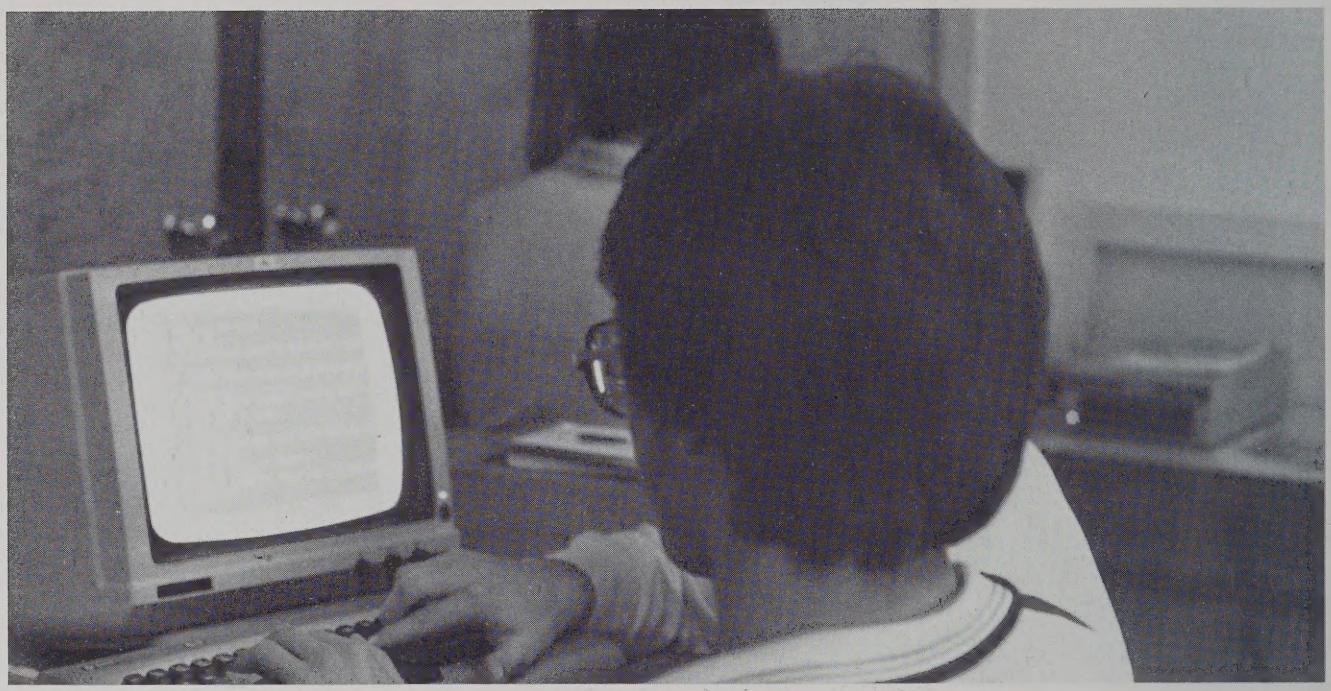
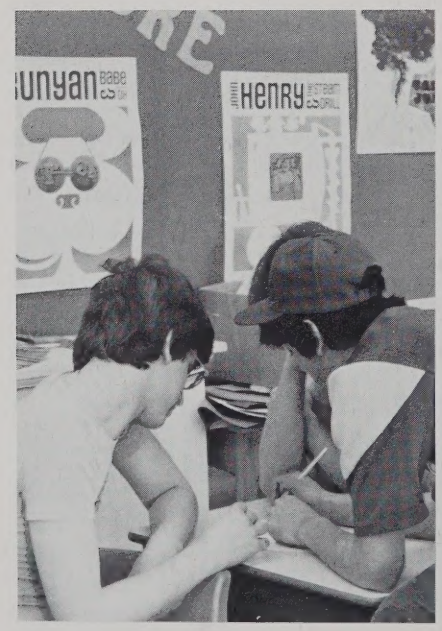
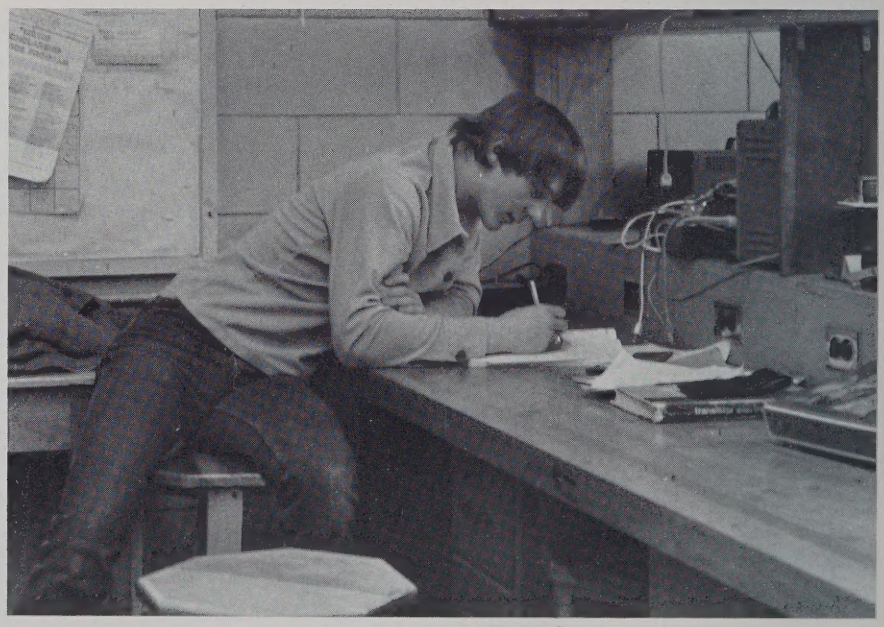
Elective Courses Give

Typing additional lines into the computer enables Seth Brandes and Jeff Graham to complete an assigned program.





John Miller, Steve Zumpano, and David Brandes revise an article before sending it on to the printers.

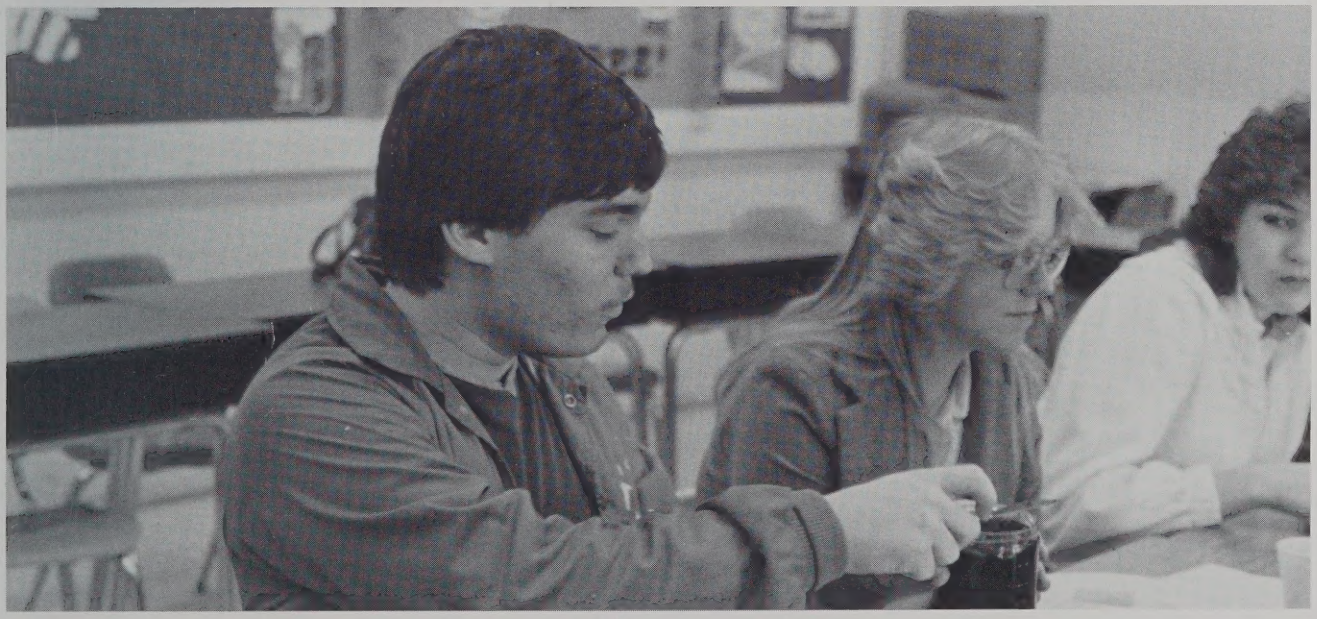


Electronics adds diversity and challenges to the schedule of Daniel Meese.

Students A Choice

A picnic during Foreign Language Week allows Steve Baker and Joyce Gatton to enjoy French dishes.

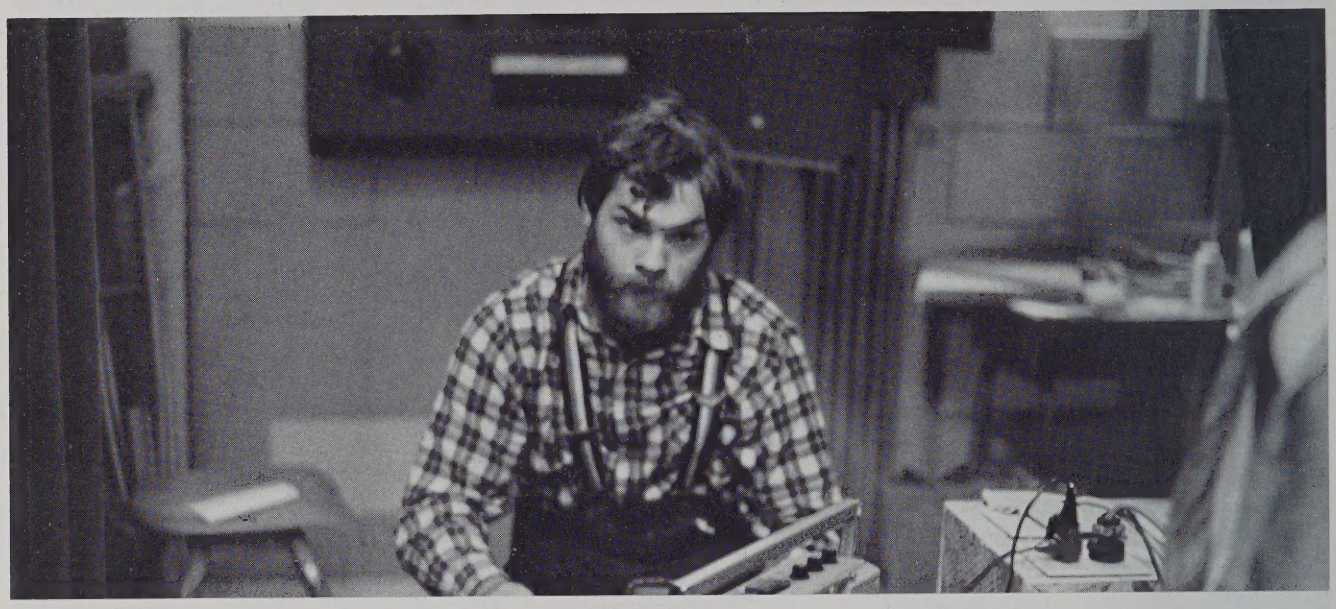
Electives play an important role in the making up of schedules. Along with the required English, math, social studies and sciences, students are given a choice of directions to to pursue in their education. Academic classes such as physics, trigonometry, and anatomy and physiology compose the bulk of classes for students attending college. Vocational courses including typing, accountimg, general business, and shorthand, help those selecting a career in the business world. Other electives offered are vocational agriculture, journalism, and French, which all provide a challenge and aid in finding success in school.



Final touches are added to play houses by Regis McKenzie in his building trades class.

Extra Curricular Activities Require Dedication

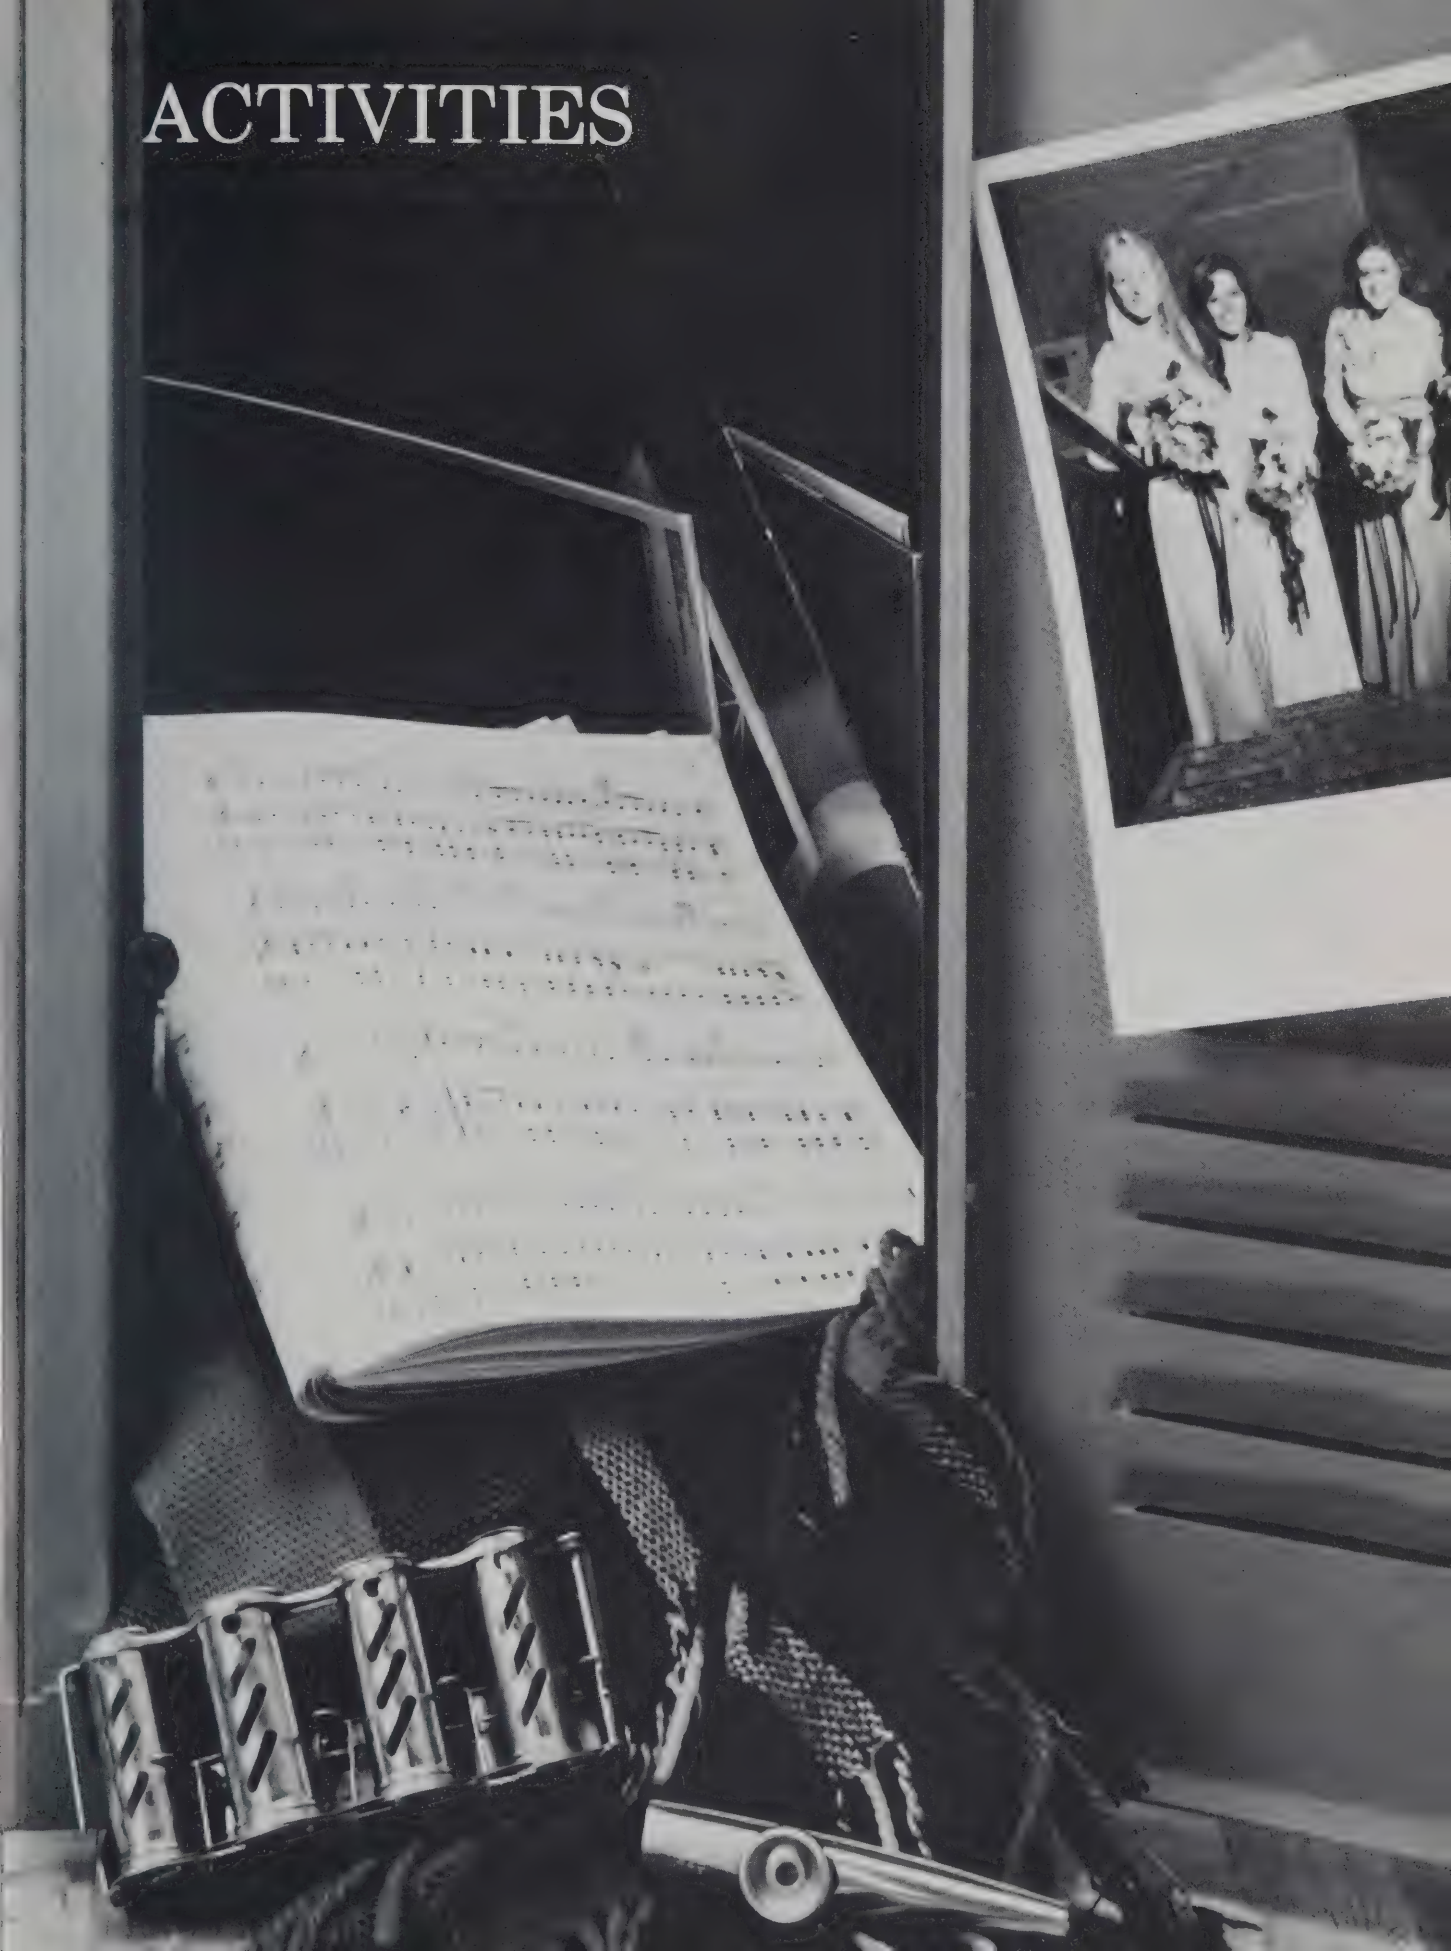
Responsible for the lights and sound effects of the play, Frankie Durst works towards a fine production.



Band performances occur under all conditions as members fight the snow at the Southern game.

Sherry Kolbfleisch and Becki Tacket urge the football team to "Go All the Way."

ACTIVITIES



Spirit Expressed

Spirited students dress all out in order to psyche the football team for Homecoming.

Spirit played a key role in numerous activities which occured throughout the year. Spirit days were sponsored, allowing students to express their creativity and show their pride by dressing in outrageous costumes. A group called the "Husky Hellions" entertained the large crowd at the Southern basketball game with many cheers and chants that taunted their Ram counterparts. A sign and a Mr. Legs contest was also held in order to back the cheerleaders in their constant effort to bring out the best in the students.

Principal Edward Green gets fired up at the pep rally before the annual showdown with Southern.

In Numerous Ways

Kate Klotzbaugh and Dan Holtschneider let their spirit show on "Inside-Out" day.

Taking time to smell the roses, Jeff Graham is crowned Mr. Legs before the student body.

Using her artistic ability to display her pride, Theresa Lehr captures first place in a sign contest sponsored by the Varsity Cheerleaders.

Magazine Campaign

Scott Watkins and Autumn Frazee attempt to prepare for the challenge of the Magazine Campaign.

As managers of the Magazine Campaign, Scott Watkins and Autumn Frazee took on the responsability of making sure that things ran smoothly and that once again the campaign would be a success. Students became involved by using skills in selling to obtain numerous prizes and awards. Although we failed to reach our goal, the total sales did reach $9,519.52. Bill Durst and Marcella Yoder were high salespersons and the homeroom with the greatest amount collected was that of Mr. Loughrie.

Mr. Hanna explains the concept of selling to the students, displayed in the background are the various prizes that can be achieved.

Gets Students Involved

The Student Body focuses their attention on the presentation given in the cafeteria.

As spokesman, Mr. Hanna talks of the many ways to go about being a good salesperson.

Magazine assemblies are old buisness to Mrs. Sines

Kim Habel Shines On

Kim Habel, accompained by Brent Beachy, is crowned the 1983 Homecoming Queen by Principal Edward Green and former queen, Laura Stanton.

Carissa Selby, escorted by Scott Rodeheaver, moves toward her appointed position.

The colorful preformance of the band adds variety and style to the half-time festivities.

A "Starry, Starry Night"

Charging onto the field with dire enthusiasm, the Huskies prepare to take on their Gator opponents.

Kim Habel receives the congratulations of the Varsity cheerleaders as she reigns over the gala event.

Taking her position on the field, Becky Thomas awaits the outcome with her escort Steve Margroff.

Vivian Richter and Mark Diehl come onto the field in hopes of taking the title.

With it's customary pride and honor, Homecoming continued to be an important part of the school year. Preparing for this gala event included the nomination of candidates, a bonfire, and creating a showcase. At halftime, the candidates were escorted onto the field where Kim Habel was crowned the queen. Other candidates included: Carissa Selby, Becky Thomas, Sandy Friend, and Vivian Richter. After a 27-0 victory over Father Geibel, a dance was sponsored by the Varsity Cheerleaders with entertainment provided by Lickety Split.

Stadium Review Sums

Amy Wellborn directs the band as they play play "Eye of the Tiger".

Varsity Cheerleaders, Becki Tacket and Carissa Selby, show the crowd their hello cheer.

The Silk Squad members recreate the routine which entertained many fans at halftime throughout the season.

Up Football Season

Coach Settle introduces each senior, giving their statistics for the season.

Adding a new feature to the school year, a Stadium Review was sponsored by the band. Each game was recapped and everyone involved in the regular Friday night activity was recognized. Performances by the band, drill team, and the cheerleaders made the evening enjoyable in what will likely become a tradition here at Northern.

The band leads the procession as the cheerleaders and the football players follow.

Talent Is Produced

A difficult selection allows Marcella Yoder to show her talent on the piano.

Capturing first place in the annual talent show was Marcella Yoder playing Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2. Marcie Beiler singing "For Annie," accompanied by Sheila Bender in sign language, took second place. Tied for students' choice were Dee Dee Seaman with a dance routine to "Beat It," and Miranda Hicks and Michele Clutter dancing to "Thriller."

Other talents included: Kate Klotzbaugh, Cathy Hanes, Kim Habel, Barb Taylor, and Gina King as Mabel and the Mau Maus singing "Tiny Bubbles," Becki Tacket singing "Don't Cry Out Loud," Amy Wellborn singing "Evergreen," and Richard Bender, Terry Beitzel, and Dwylin Miller singing an original song and playing the guitar, the keyboards, the drums.

A modern rendition of "Tiny Bubbles," done by Kate Klotzbaugh and Barb Taylor, entertains the crowd.

Dee Dee Seaman executes an original routine to a popular tune.

Among Student Body

Marcie Beiler sings "For Annie", as Sheila Bender accompanies her with sign language.

Capturing the attention of her audience, Becki Tacket vocalizes "Don't Cry Out Loud."

Miranda Hicks and Michele Clutter dance to Michael Jackson's "Thriller", sharing the title of student's choice.

Students Present

Doing what she does best, Meg Bradford (Becki Tacket) munches on potato chips.

Marion Bradford (Amy Wellborn) pleads for more time as she speaks to the "mortgage monster" over the phone.

The tenants of the Bradford house welcome home Laura Williams (Carissa Selby) from the hospital following her automobile accident.

A "Handful Of Rainbows"

As Howard Wexler (Scott Watkins) moves in, Meg Bradford (Becki Tacket) tries to dodge his advancements.

The Theatre mini-course sponsored a play called "A Handful of Rainbows." The cast consisted of Becki Tacket as Meg Bradford, Amy Wellborn as Marion Bradford, Cathy Hanes as Honey Houston, Lisa Zuckerman as Carla Ferguson, Ralph Klotzbaugh as Tommy Grant, Darrell Yoder as Jeff Donovan, John Miller as Steffen Barcola, Carissa Selby as Laura Williams, and Shari Broom as Rebecca Starr. The play was performed in school on April 12 and 13. A performance was also held for the public on the 13th at 7:30 p.m.

Carla Ferguson (Lisa Zuckerman) reminisces about the old days as she looks through her scrapbook with Steffen Barcola (John Miller).

Feeling a little tipsy, Rebecca Starr (Shari Broom) thanks her agent for the evening while Jeff Donovan (Darrell Yoder) listens.

Career Day Advises Students

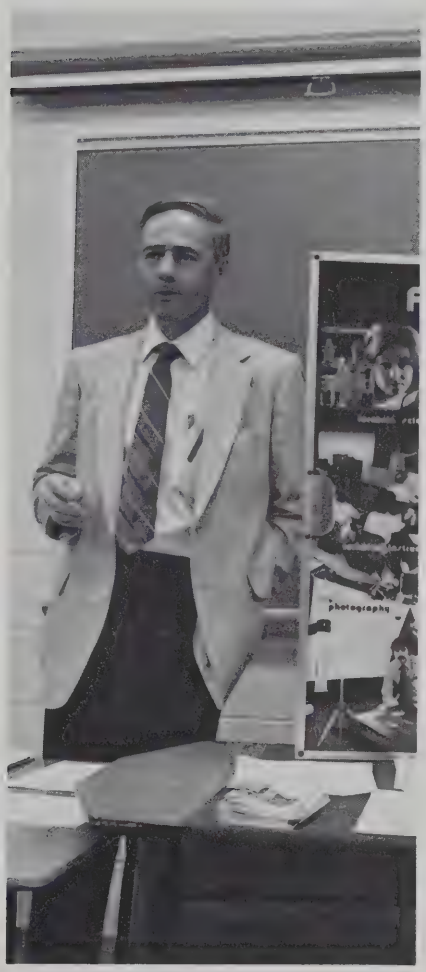
Talking to representatives from Garrett Community College, Dawn Humberson discusses the fall semester.

Career Day was held on May 10, at Garrett Community College. Students had a choice of various seminars to attend throughout the day. Some examples of this were Computer Careers, Forest and Park Careers, nursing careers, and coal minimg. There were also representatives from several colleges and armed forces in the gym to assist students.

Northern and Southern students take a break from the seminars to eat lunch.

Toward Future Endeavors

During a marriage seminar, Connie Stewart, Amy Wellborn, Scott Watkins, and Cathy Hanes plan a family budget.



FBI representative talks to students about various career opportunities in the FBI.

Providing entertainment, the "Entertainers" sing and dance to "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

Students Receive

Lisa Zuckerman presents an award to Mrs. Lucile Sines in appreciation for her dedication in 31 years as a teacher.

Mr. James Boord presents an award to Amy Welborn for her hard work as Drum Major.

The wrestling team is rewarded for their hard work throughout the season.

Due Recognition

Mr. Jack Settle recognizes each member of the football team and those who lettered.

Mrs. Lucile Sines presents a letter to each one of her students.

Senior Trip Breaks

Seniors say farewell as they prepare for the evening on the cruise.

The Senior Trip was held on May 15. The seniors left the school at 8:45 and arrived at Kennywood Park at 11:00, having the entire day to enjoy all the rides, games, and food. At 4:00, the students collected themselves and changed for the Gateway Clipper where they enjoyed dinner and dancing until 10:00.

Connie Stewart waits as everyone unloads the bus to enjoy a fun-filled day at Kennywood.

Monotony Of Classroom

Cathy Hanes and Greg Rodeheaver discuss the day's activities before boarding the Gateway Clipper.

From Station Square, seniors received a clear view of downtown Pittsburgh.

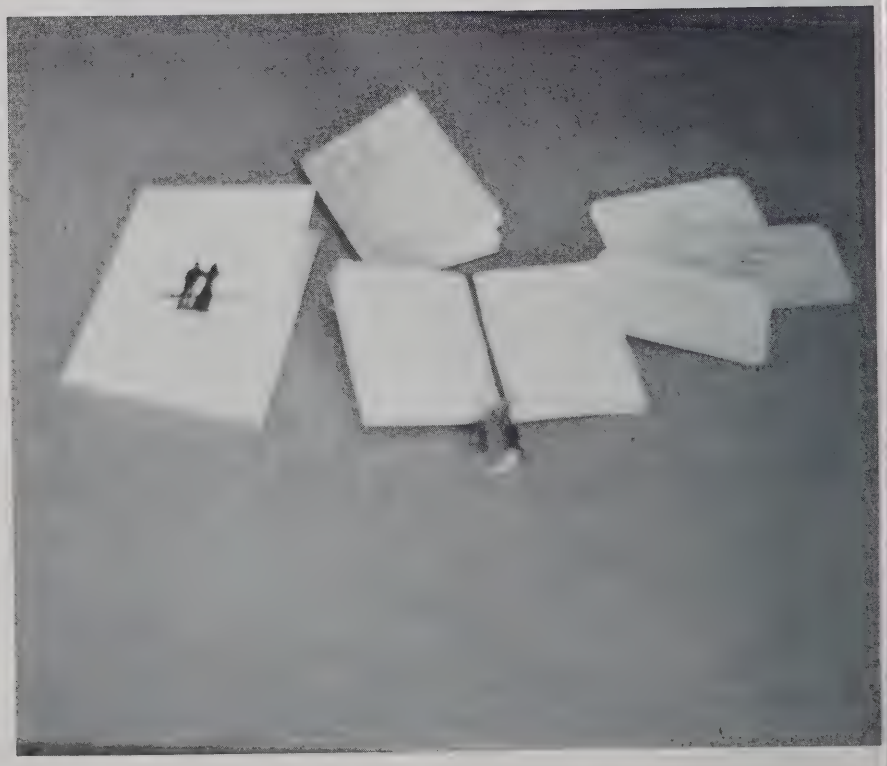
Prom Goers Party "All Night Long"

Sherry Kolbfleisch, escorted by Ronnie Stark, is crowned the 1984 Prom Queen.

Invitations, tickets, and souvenir booklets were given out to those attending by the Junior Class.



The 1984 Junior-Senior Prom was held on May 19, at Silver Tree Inn. Before dinner, Ruhl Studios took pictures for couples interested. Brent Beachy, who served as master of ceremonies, introduced the head table and special guests. Windfall provided entertainment for dancing, and at 11:00 Sherry Kolbfleisch was crowned queen. Other members of the prom court included Carissa Selby, Dawn Humberson, Carol Wilt, and Becky Abbott.

Senior Parade Brings Excitement

Greg Rodeheaver and Cathy Hanes say their final farewell to Northern High.

Kim Moore and Kim Habel yell and scream as they parade around the parking lot.

The Senior Parade took place on Wednesday, May 23, 1984, at 9:00. It gave seniors a chance to say farewell to everyone on their last day at school. Several students decorated their cars with balloons, crepe paper, and signs despite the rain. It began at the scenic overlook and continued down Route 219 until the conclusion in front of the school.

Practice Makes Perfect

Becky Abbott accepts her graduation tickets in place of her diploma.

Walking onto the platform, Richard Bender is instructed on how diplomas will be given out.

Graduation practice prepared the seniors for the commencement exercises on Sunday, May 27. It gave the graduates an organized idea on how the ceremony was to take place. They were told how to enter the gym with an assigned partner, where to sit, when to stand, and other things necessary to give a polished performance. Tickets were also handed out at this time for family amd friends.

Graduation: A New Beginning

Mrs. Vonda Yunker helps seniors straighten their gowns and fix their collars.

Becki Tacket walks onto the podium to receive an award for academic achievement.

Kenny Weimer expresses his feelings toward graduation.

Graduation Brings On

The class of 1984 sits as a whole group for possibly the final time at the ceremony which symbolizes the end of high school.

Brad Yoder accepts his award upon finishing second in his class and claiming his position as salutatorian.

Yvonne Sisler and Brenda Yoder adjust their hats before entering the gym.

Mixed Emotions

Graduation brought about many tears and laughter. Ms. Anna Mary Fratz, a Board of Education Member, gave out diplomas while other Board members attended as guests. The chorus sang "Up Where We Belong" and "Memory." The Board of Education sponsored a Post-Graduation tea, served by the Student Council.

Standing in line, the Senior Class await graduation.

Kate Klotzbaugh and Brad Brenneman enjoy the post-graduation tea.

Amy Wellborn accepts an award for being a part of the top 10% of her class.

Becky Thomas Crowned 1984 Snowball Queen

The Snowball Dance sponsored by the Lettermens Club was held on January 7, in the cafeteria. Billy Weisgerber served as the disc jockey throughout the night with Becky Thomas taking the title of Queen. Her court included Sherry Kolb fleisch, Liz Sisler, Adrienne Cowan, and Beverly McCarty. Selection was based on nomination by the Lettermens Club members and a popular vote by the student body.

Becky Thomas, escorted by Roy Miller, takes the honor of Snowball Queen.

Beverly McCarty, Adrienne Cowan, Becky Thomas, Sherry Kolbfleisch, and Liz Sisler represent their respective grades as the 1984 Snowball Court.

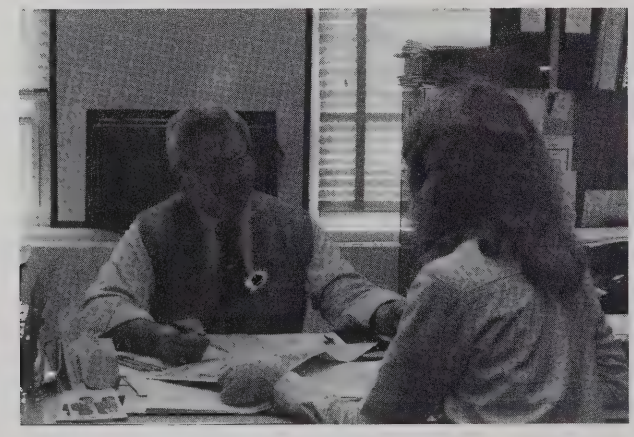
Mr. Thomas provides Amy Wellborn with the needed information in order to complete her Financial Aid Form.



Meeting college expenses was a great concern of many college-bound seniors. In order to help lower the amount of money paid by the individual himself, a financial aid meeting was set up for seniors and their parents. This meeting was held January 23 and financial aid forms were passed out and explained. Also throughout the year, announcements about scholarships and other grants were made known to students for more financial help.

Recruiter Sgt. Paul Woods speaks to Kevin McKenzie about the career opportunities of the Air Force.

Providing an option to college were the many armed forces recruiters that visited the school. Seniors, both boys and girls, met with these people to find out more about service programs and what advantages they held. All recruiters provided pamphlets, magazines, and other sourses of information for students and answered any questions they may have asked.

As the "big day" drew nearer, seniors had many final preparations that had to be completed. One of these was ordering and receiving senior keys, memory books, announcements, and caps and gowns. These items were ordered in the fall and keys and memory books were delivered and passed out before Christmas. Caps and gowns and announcements were distributed on April 16. Now, with this taken care of, students could set their sights on graduation - fully prepared.

Recognized for their academic achievements were Vivian Richter, Brad Yoder, Scott Watkins, Carissa Selby, David Brandes, Amy Wellborn, Lisa Zuckerman, John Miller, John Kaiser, Seth Brandes, Becki Tacket, Sherry Kolbfleisch, and Regina Canan.

Leading the senior class academically were thirteen students who composed the top 10%. These students were recognized at the Academic Banquet and were presented certificates at the school's annual awards assembly.

Class History

With a few exceptions, the students in the class of 1984 came into being in 1966. It wasn't long until we fell prey to the clutches of kindergarten and the start of thirteen years of education. The class came together as a whole at Northern Middle School. We were the first seventh grade, coming from different parts of Garrett County or other areas, to enter the new middle school. During the two years we were there, friendships grew, changes took place, and we became one-the class of 1984.

Before long, another move was made to Northern Garrett High School. That first day of ninth grade is one to remember. The doors gaped open like the humongous mouth of Jaws (three). One would think, and as freshmen we did, that if once entered escape would be impossible. The first week or so of transition was invigorating. However, we eventually adjusted and were soon getting into the swing of things. Jim Swauger served on the varsity football team and Becki Tacket and Lani Dailey helped the volleyball team gain permanent possession of the rotating trophy. Serving on the wrestling team were Jeff Graham and Greg McKenzie, with the girls' basketball team taking on Dove Wassell and Carol Wilt. With spring came baseball as the rotating trophy was gained and Phil Carr was noted for his outstanding ability. Supporting members included Greg Diehl, Dwight Emory, Lamar Beiler, Dan Holtschneider, and Roy Miller. Stella Steuber and Dove Wassell traveled to Kansas City, representing the North Garrett FFA Chapter. Also members of the FFA, Dwight Emory and Mark Harman participated in the annual State Soil Judging Contest. Carissa Selby and Roy Miller represented the ninth grade in the Autumn Glory Festival and Becki Tacket was the Heart Fund princess.

"Goodbye ninth grade. Hello tenth," was soon on the tips of our tongues. Becoming varsity cheerleaders were Carissa Selby and Sherry Kolbfleisch. Kim Habel filled the position of drill team co-captain while Amy Wellborn became drum majorette of the band. Representing the tenth grade in Autumn Glory were Lisa Zuckerman and Jeff Graham, while Carissa Selby was voted Snowball princess. Amy Wellborn demonstrated talents of leadership and patriotism serving as a representative to Hugh O'Brien and winning the speech award for the Voice of Democracy contest. Representing the FHA, Regina Canan captured top honors in nutritional/illustrated talk competition at the State Spring Conference. Helping to represent the student body were Becki Tacket serving as Student Council treasurer and Lisa Zuckerman as secretary. Chosen as outstanding sophomores were Vivian Richter and Jeff Graham, while David Brandes and Vivian Richter gained recognition for having straight 'A's for all four terms.

Our junior year saw a lot of success from different students as we grew in mind and spirit. Roy Miller, Jeff Graham, Greg Diehl, Bill Laird, Phil Carr, Jim Swauger, Kevin McKenzie, and Dave Georg made football history as the Class C Region I Championship was won. The volleyball team saw its best career record with Lani Dailey and Carol Wilt serving as players. Also winning the Class C Region I title was the softball team aided by Carol Wilt, Regina Canan, Dove Wassell, and Lisa Wilson. A new sport at Northern was golf as Chip Frank grabbed a club and joined the N.H.S. putters. Drama reappeared at Northern after quite a few years with the performance of "The Curious Savage". Throwing everything into the production were Scott Watkins, Amy Wellborn, Becki Tacket, Carissa Selby, Lisa Zuckerman, Todd Bashore, Randy McCord, and Kate Klotzbaugh in acting, Mike Thomas as stage-hand, and Dawn Humberson and Lani Dailey doing make-up. Also, capturing two positions on the varsity cheerleading squad were Becki Tacket and Kim Moore. Amy Wellborn gained first place and student's choice in the annual talent show singing "Stairway to Heaven." Public appearances were made by Kate Klotzbaugh, who served as emcee for the Garrett Community College talent show, Kim Habel, who was crowned Winterfest Queen, and Barbara Louise Friend, who won Champion Pleasure Horse in the Garrett County Fair. Scott Watkins won the National Olympiad Award and the American Legion Award for history. Attending the Maryland Junior Science Symposium was David Brandes, as Doug Bittinger was a representative to the Governor's Youth Advisory Council. Rodney Frazee, Brett Friend, and Dave Uphold displayed their talent for observation in the Maryland State Meat Judging Contest. Heading the class as president was Lisa Zuckerman, with Jeff Graham vice-president, Carissa Selby treasurer, and Vivian Richter secretary making up the remainder of the executive committee. Helping the junior class through all its trials and tribulations were the advisors Mr. Martin Green and Mr. Gerald Snelson.

"Sake's Alive! I'm a SENIOR!" dominated the thoughts of each individual as the thirteenth year of our education rolled in to pick us up. Jeff Graham represented the senior class as president along with Lisa Zuckerman as vice-president, Carissa Selby as secretary, and Sandi Friend as treasurer. Dwight Emory made it to and from Boy's State and Scott Watkins managed the magazine campaign. Kim Habel was chosen to reign as queen over the annual Homecoming events and Becky Thomas reigned as Snowball Queen. Cathy Hanes won the honor of being queen of the annual Winterfest activities, and she also secured a position on the varsity cheerleading squad. In the fall football is the sport, and supporting the team were Roy Miller, Jeff Graham, Jim Swauger, Greg Diehl, Kevin McKenzie, Dave Georg, Bill Laird, and Phil Carr. Bouncing the ball up and down the court in basketball were Phil Carr, Brad Yoder, Todd Bashore, and Lamar Beiler. Carol Wilt was the only senior girl to play basketball. Jeff Graham and Greg McKenzie aided the wrestling team in placing 15th out of 56 schools at the State Wrestling Tournament. Becky Abbott and Carol Wilt served away on the volleyball team, while Lisa Wilson and Regina Canan kept stats. Jeff Graham, Dwight Emory, Phil Carr, Seth Brandes, Lamar Beiler, Greg Diehl, Roy Miller, and Kevin McKenzie played baseball. Softball players were Lisa Wilson, Carol Wilt, Becky Abbott, and Regina Canan. Lettering in three sports during their years at Northern were Phil Carr, Jeff Graham and Carol Wilt. The royal position of the Husky mascot was filled by Kate Klotzbaugh who added general spirit to the Huskies. Representing Northern in All-State Chorus were Becki Tacket and Debbie Jones. Marcella Yoder placed first in the talent show with her rendition of Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody." Carissa Selby led the varsity cheerleaders who proudly placed first in their summer camp. Kim Habel served as captain of the drill team and flag squad. Amy Wellborn was appointed editor of the newspaper and Mike Thomas was yearbook editor. Chosen as student page to Annapolis was Amy Wellborn. Leaving Northern and entering various colleges for their senior year were Doug Bittinger, Melrose Hanft, Lani Dailey, and Barb Lynn Friend. Performing in the school play, "A Handful of Rainbows," were Amy Wellborn, Becki Tacket, Scott Watkins, Lisa Zuckerman, Cathy Hanes, John Miller, Darrell Yoder, and Carissa Selby. Dawn Humberson and Kim Moore managed make-up while Brad Yoder, Richard Bender, Mike Thomas, and Todd Bashore supervised set design and stage management. Helping to add guidance to senior activities were the advisors Mr. and Mrs. Robert Yunker and Mrs. Donetta Nice.

With minds set on the future, the class of 1984 was graduated from Nothern Garrett High School on May 27, 1984. The times shared together at Northern will always be cherished and each graduate shall recall the memories for many years to come.

Graduation Culminates

Serving as the 1984 Valedictorian, Vivian Richter delivers her speech on the past and future of her fellow graduates.

Seniors Becky Abbott and Brent Fratz lead the processional to the traditional tune of "Pomp and Curcumstance."

Salutatorian Brad Yoder speaks on the five educational steps taken towards graduation.

Four Years Of Activity

Receiving a certificate for his efforts, Sheldon Yoder makes his way back to his appointed spot.

Senior class president Jeff Graham turns over the mantle to Sheila Bender, president of the class of 1985.

Class advisor Mrs. Donetta Nice puts the finishing touches to Barb Taylor's gown.

Graduation was a moment of mixed emotions, as seniors expressed happiness and sorrow. They looked toward the future and reaching individual goals. They realized that they may never see one another again and will miss the close relationships they shared. They also looked forward and knew that they must go on and proceed with life, each knowing what high school meant to him.

Post-Graduation Tea Served

Talking with students whom he has worked with for two years, Mr. Ed Green also finds time to fix a collar before the long awaited moment.

Shannon Wright, although not a senior, also feels the emotion that is involved in the high school commencement.

Preparing for the post graduation tea, Tammy Swauger carries out a bowl of punch to be set with cookies at various tables.

By Student Council

David Brandes accepts his Presidential Academic Fitness Award after finishing' high school ranked fifth in the graduating class.

At the post graduation tea, Mr. Edward Green talks with others about the ceremony.

Placing their tassels on the left side of their cap signals that the class of 1984 has completed graduation.

Class Prayer

by Cathy Hanes

Dear Heavenly Father,

As our school years come to a close, we look back at our past and towards the future and the decisions we must make. Thank You for standing by us through these years of growing and teaching us to dream and strive for our goals.

Please stay with each and every one of us as we go our separate ways and say goodbye to our friends who have become a very important part of us, and let us realize that graduation is not the end, but just a new beginning.

Now as we part, may God keep us in his care and guidance.

In Jesus' name,
Amen.

Juniors Share Leadership

Leadership roles were held by many students and teachers. Students led organizations such as clubs, committees, and the Drill Team. Teachers and members of the administration advised these groups. One example of such leadership was the role of co-manager of the school's magazine campaign undertaken by Autumn Frazee.

Sharing his ideas, advisor Mr. Martin Green discusses prom plans with Activities Committee members Brenda Beiler, Autumn Frazee, Rita Friend, and Sheila Bender.

Work With Details Brings

Along with colleagues, Tim Everly and Sheila Bender select prom invitations to order for the seniors.

Flanked by classmate Berenice Edgar and advisor Mr. Martin Green, members of the Junior Class Activities Committee, Autumn Frazee, Rita Friend, and Brenda Beiler, sign up Tina Brant as she receives her prom ticket.

Fund raisers for the Junior Class included selling candy and sponsoring the Northern Alumni vs. the Cumberland Cuties basketball game. Leading the class in these projects was the Activities Committee.

Prom planning was a major responsibility for these students. Choosing "All Night Long" as the evening's theme, the committee handled all the necessary arrangements in order to present the senior class with a pleasant and memorable prom.

Success In Major Projects

Sophomores

Tenth graders carried many responsibilities in handling details. Members of the Nordique club were required to plan each page. This assignment included such things as laying out pages and dispersing artwork among students' poems and stories in the layouts.

Carefulness was stressed in science classes during labs. Biology students handled sharp instruments with care so as not to dissect classmates, nor cut up their victim specimens too much.

Details were a major part of students' lives. Homework assignments, as well as tests and quizzes, called for careful work with details.

Being careful to cut out a write-up properly, LuAnn Hartley prepares to glue it on the Nordique layout.

Learning and memory of what was learned took on new aspects for students. Comprehensive final exams were required and made up a fifth of a student's final grade. This new method caused some students to try to remember information they had learned throughout the year, while others only feared and trembled over their "doomsday."

Students Wrestle With Tests

Enrollment: 160

Tests, tests, tests! Ninth graders had a better chance than ever before to show their intelligence. In addition to the Functional Reading Test, already Required for graduation, they took the new Functional Math Test, now a graduation requirement.

The results of this math test were disappointing for many students, with 66 percent of those tested failing the test in the fall. Plans for retesting in the spring, however, helped encourage a prospective outlook for improvement. A Functional Writing Test, the latest requirement for graduation, was also planned for the spring.

Realizing the importance of mathematical knowledge, Mary Rafferty concentrates on the Algebra lesson.

In New Opportunities

"The weather for today is . . ." Members of Mrs. Valerie Frazee's Earth Science Prep. class reported daily forecasts over the public address system each morning. This new opportunity was one of several available to ninth graders.

Mathematically-minded students were offered Advanced Algebra I for the first time. Mr. James Bucy, the instructor for this course, was pleased with the students' work in this new challenge. Faster coverage of material allowed the class to obtain knowledge in areas of Algebra otherwise concealed from them.

Several students had their first opportunity to walk the halls of Northern. Ninth graders in this group included Rodney Baggott and Rodney Arblaster.

Baggott, who comes from Prince George's County, noted the great difference in size between Northern and his former school. (Two gyms and cafeterias were involved in its structure.) What did he think about Northern? "It's all right . . ."

Arblaster, a native New Yorker coming via Virginia, also contrasted Northern and his former school. An active participant on the track team in Virginia, he soon noted the lack of such a team here. His answer about Northern: "It's OK, I guess."

FACULTY

Administration Facilitates

Members of the administration carried different roles. Responsibilities included record keeping, administering discipline, making decisions for school functions, and advising students in post-graduate plans. College bound students found help from Mr. James Thomas, who scheduled visits from nearby Garrett Community College, Allegany Community College, Frostburg State, and from Towson University and the University of Maryland at College Park. Also sending representatives were Alderson-Broaddus College and Shepherd College in West Virginia. Recruiters from all branches of the military made monthly visits to the school. As part of a program for improving school atmosphere, the administration initiated student luncheons. At the monthly luncheons ten students chosen at random ate lunch with the principal or vice-principal. In informal discussions students were encouraged to express their feelings about school and to give suggestions for improvement.

Using part of his planning period, Mr. James Bucy runs off final exams on the ditto machine in the teachers' workroom.

Besides the vending machines and the microwave oven in the teachers' workroom, there were other machines that made the life of a teacher a little easier.

The ditto machine made duplicate copies and got the most use. Reams of paper were run through the machine for office bulletins and for tests and worksheets prepared by teachers. Less frequently used were the typewriter and the paper cutter, which were a help to teachers who did not have this equipment in their own rooms. The laminating machine was used to put plastic coating over paper to protect from damage.

The teachers' workroom was used quite often by staff members in preparing educational materials as well as for relaxing over a coke or a cup of coffee.

Maryland State Teachers Association staged on February 13, 1984, the largest rally Annapolis has ever seen in protest against efforts in the legislature to cut retirement benefits. Educators objected to cutting retirement benefits to gain funding for such projects as cleaning up the Chesapeake Bay.

Among the teachers who participated in the rally were Mrs. Joanny C. Martin, Mrs. Donetta Nice, Miss Anna May Norris, Mrs. JoAnn Robinson, Mr. Gerald F. Snelson, Mr. Robert H. Yunker and Mrs. Vonda M. Yunker.

Service Personnel Aid School System

Cooks spent many long hard hours in the kitchen, carrying heavy pots and preparing lunches for the faculty and pupils. The cooks were an essential part of the school system. Keeping the school tidy and looking neat was not always an easy job. Custodians worked all day cleaning, and then a second shift came in to clean at night. They also helped with repairs. Bus drivers had a tremendous amount of responsibility driving through the hard winter and slippery roads. Discipline on the bus was their responsibility.

Twenty-four buses provided daily transportation for students to and from the school. Grantsville, Friendsville, Accident, McHenry, Cove, and Bittinger area homes had transportation provided, as did some of the smaller communities, including Finzel area homes nearly thirty miles from school.

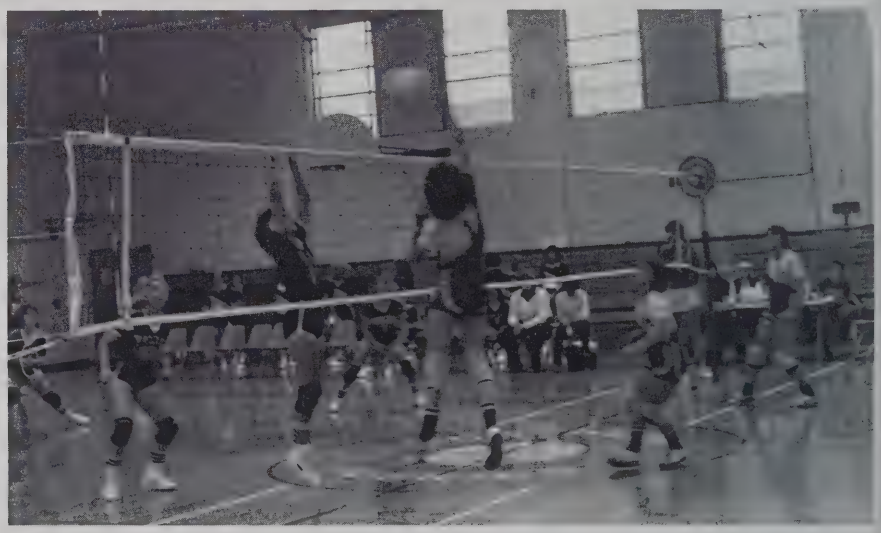
In a roster of 12, the team hosted 7 new players. Therefore, each game started 4 beginners with 2 veterans. In a short time, the new players noted the effort it takes to turn out a successful year. Although the opening game against Calvary Christian Academy was victorious, many subsequent matches fell to opponents. Highlights included wins over C.C.A. and Oldtown. In a close game against Southern, the ladies relinquished the rotation trophy to the Rams.



Julie Robeson follows through with a powerful spike, as Missy Durst and Amy Swauger stand by to assist.

In hopes of duplicating last year's success, the Husky team started their season with a victory of 7 to 0 against Bruce. The next two games proved discouraging when the team met defeat by Frankfort and Beall. In following matches, the Huskies defeated Berkeley Springs, Father Geibel, and Meyersdale. Many players were unable to play up to their fullest potential due to unfortunate injuries. Of the eight starting senior players, seven suffered injuries during the season, and the optimism of a winning season was diminished as more irretrievable losses were recorded.

With a successful tackle, a Husky player halts the progress of his opponent.

In a team huddle, the Huskies plan their strategic plays to win the game.

Successful Season

SENIORS: Jeff Graham, Bob Wilt, Greg McKenzie

Led by only three seniors, the wrestling squad accomplished several wins over their opponents to obtain a successful record for the year. The Huskies' first match ended with a victory over East Preston and helped boost the team to capture Keyser, Valley, Central Preston, Berlin, and Allegany. To complete the season, the wrestlers conquered the Southern Rams during school time with a convincing score of 35 to 25.

Waiting for the referee to proclaim a pin, Howard Finzel restrains his competitor.

In a tight hold, Courtney Rounds plans to crush his opponent.

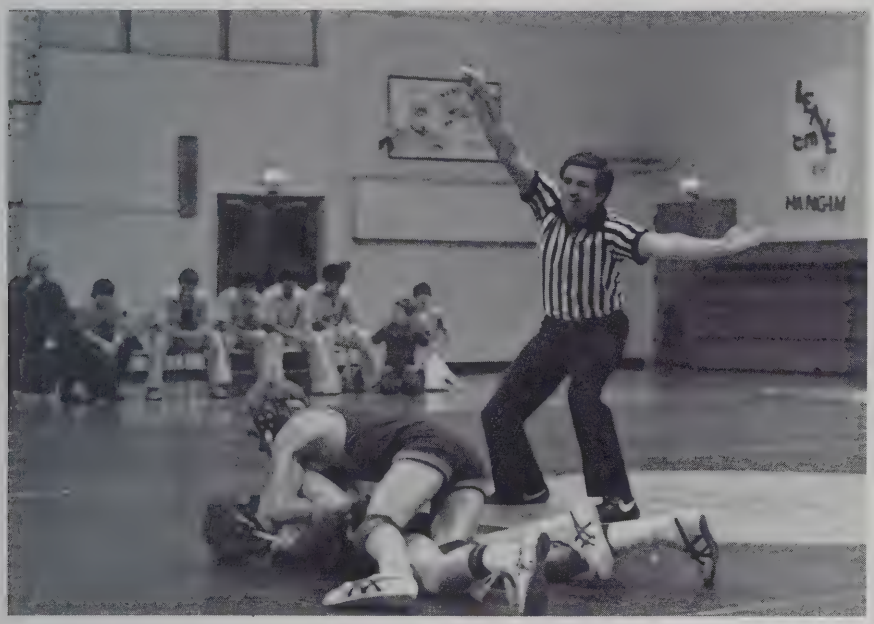
Adding two points for the Huskies, Ronnie Stark prepares to breakdown his opponent.

Using skillful techniques, Greg McKenzie attempts to pin his opponent.

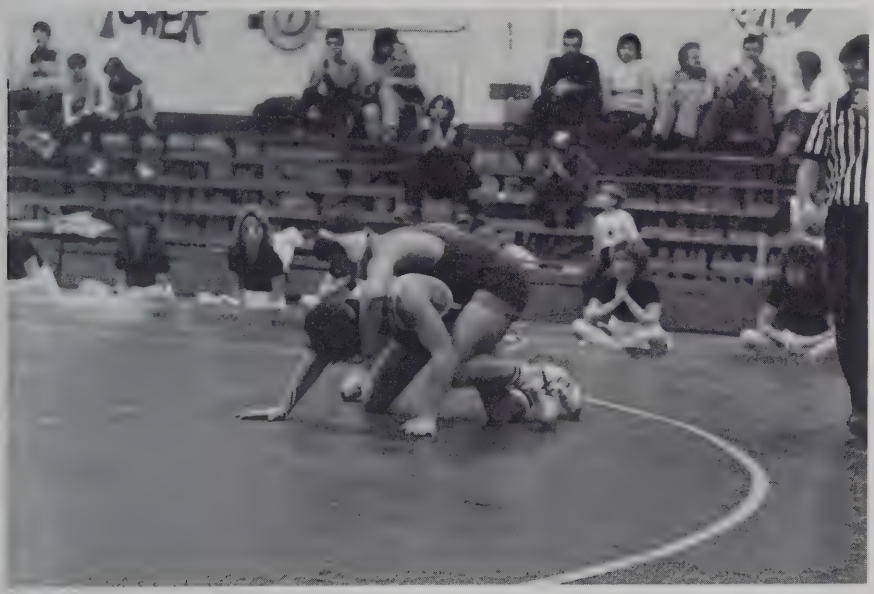
Parents Dottie Stark and Edna Mae McKenzie help support the team with their enthusiastic cheering.

At State Tournaments

With a reversal completed by John Merrbach, two points are added to the score.



Three Husky teammates placed in the State Tournaments. Senior Jeff Graham, a four-year letterman, placed fifth in the 155 pound weight class. Junior Howard Finzel also contributed to the year by placing fifth in the 126 pound weight class. Sophomore John Merrbach had a successful season winning 22 of his 26 matches. He went on to lead the squad by placing third in his 105 pound division at States.



Using his wrestling knowledge, Jeff Graham gains control of his opponent.

In hopes of making a clean pass, Carol Wilt tries to dodge her opponent.

Dribbling the ball intently, Kris Speicher moves toward the Northern end of the court.

Coach Sandi Sisler bandages Scheree Savage's foot to help prevent any injuries during the game.

The 1983-1984 Girls' Basketball team gained some ground with a 2-16 record over last year's no-win season. The team was small, consisting of seven players, with only one senior. Under the direction of a new coach, Sandi Sisler, the group triumphed in two games against Oldtown.

Julie Robeson hands the ball over to Kris Speicher on approaching half-court.

On releasing the ball, Julie Robeson awaits the accuracy of her shot.

In a tip-off, Carol Wilt procedes to tap the ball to one of her teammates.

Coach Sandi Sisler, a former N.H.S. student, took over the job of coaching the girls' basketball team.

Four Seniors Finish Second

Breaking the Black Knight's rhythm, four Husky players hold a tight defense.

Brad Yoder starts the Husky offensive drive against Bruce by passing the ball to Phil Carr.

At the foul line, Brent Beachy uses his perfect form to add another point to the score.

Season On Varsity Squad

With a score of 53 to 34, the varsity basketball team topped Salisbury to begin their season with success. After falling to Beall, Valley, and Mt. Savage, the defeat over Oldtown was greatly appreciated. Subsequent games proved to be unavailing until the Huskies outscored East Preston, Oldtown, and Flintstone with a burst of power and skill. The concluding matches were uneventful as the varsity team was grounded in their attempt to surpass their competitor.

In hopes of taking charge, Randy Kamp uses his height to out-jump his Meyersdale opponent.

Fighting off Bruce's tough defense, Brad Yoder battles to keep the ball in his possession.

Capturing the titles of Best Offensive Player and MVP, Brad Yoder dribbles the ball confidently down the court.

Using their defensive strategy, the Husky team attempts to block a Raider pass.

Named to the Second Team All Area, Brad Yoder displays his proficiency in basketball by playing vigorously against Valley.

During practice Rodney Baggott does a lay-up while Charlie Beiler attempts to block the shot.

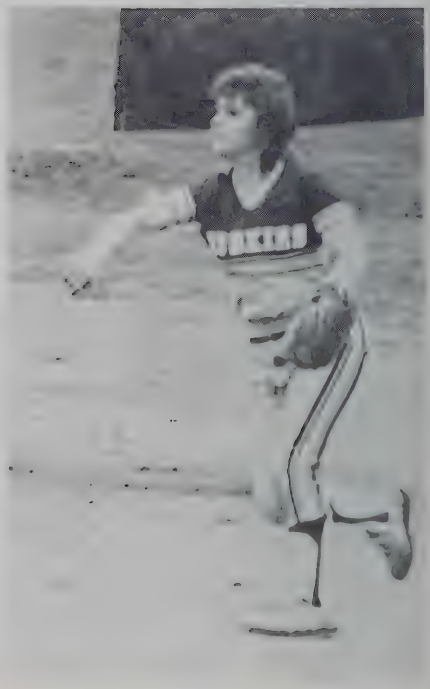
Girls Capture First Place

Her eyes on the ball, Bev McCarty has her sights on a base hit.

Pitcher Kim Buckel hurls the ball across the plate for a strike.

Touching home plate, Lisa Wilson adds another point to the score against Southern.



In intense concentration, Missy Durst releases the ball to ultimately get the opponent out.

In District Playoffs

Displaying her fine style, Regina Canan prepares to deliver a strike against her Meyersdale opponent.

In her fourth season as catcher, Carol Wilt protects the home plate by planning to tag her opposition.

Second baseman Missy Durst squeezes her glove to secure the catch.

Under the instruction of coaches Vonda and Robert Yunker, the 1984 Softball Team finished the year with a hard earned eleven and two mark. They started the season with six consecutive victories, falling the seventh game to Rockwood. They then pulled together to win five more games, including a defeat and a loss against Southern on the home field. The triumphant team then entered the District Playoffs in first place but suffered heartbreaking loss of 14 to 10 against Boonsboro, completing the season.

In a game against C.C.A., Carol Wilt prepares to catch her teammate's pitch.

Kim Buckel anxiously awaits the pitch as she concentrates on making contact with the ball.

Liz Sisler runs as fast as she can to beat-out the throw to first base.

Boys Almost Break Even

On a base hit up the middle, Phil Carr scores easily from second base.

Holding the runner close at first base, Greg Diehl watches for a throw from the pitcher.

The 1983-1984 Baseball Team achieved a final record of eight wins and ten losses for the season. Led by eight seniors, the team captured Rockwood, Beall, and Turkeyfoot, outscoring them two games each. Many of the games that were lost were decided by only two runs or less. The season ended with a double-header against arch-rival Southern, resulting in losses of 14-6 and 8-7.

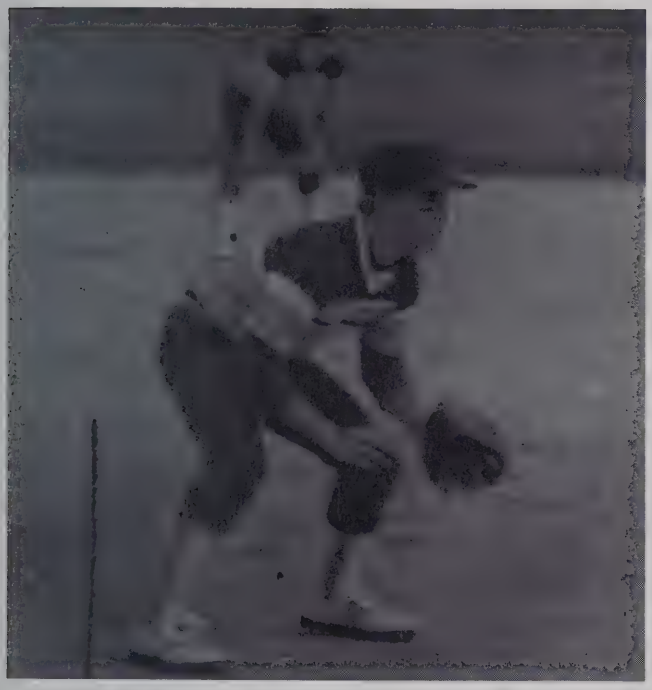
With Win-Loss Situation

Protecting the third base line, Dwight Emory gets in defensive position to field the ball.



Catcher Charlie Beiler encourages the pitcher to throw the ball down the middle for a strike.

Assistant Coach Ed Carr and Dwight Emory congratulate pitcher Charlie Beiler on a job well done.

Third baseman Dwight Emory keeps a close watch on his Turkeyfoot opponent.

With an even, powerful hit, Roy Miller hits a line drive between the first and second basemen.

Attempting to give the team some encouragement, Coach Settle meets the boys on the mound.

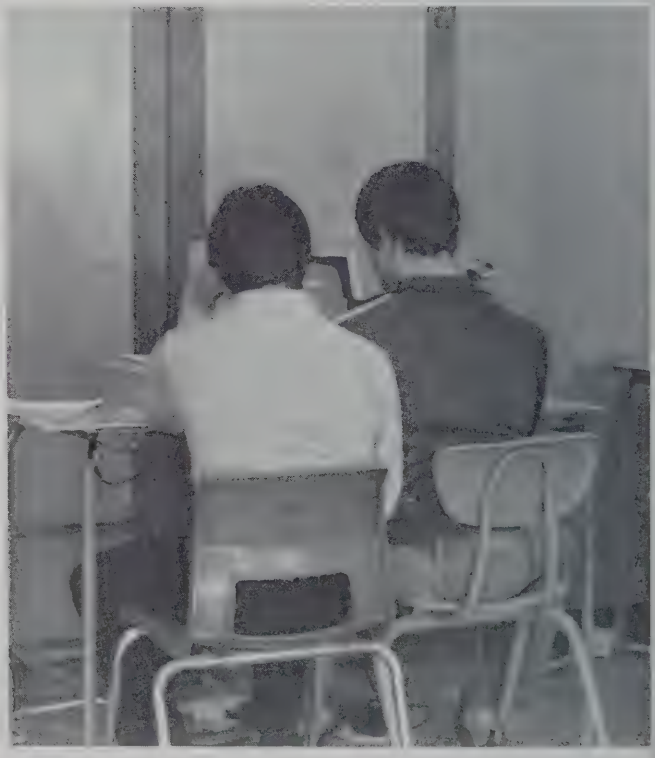
Baserunner Bill Murray observes the outcome of the hit as he prepares to run home.

CLASSES

Computers Bring

Working as a team, Sherry Kolbfleisch and Marcella Yoder discuss their program.

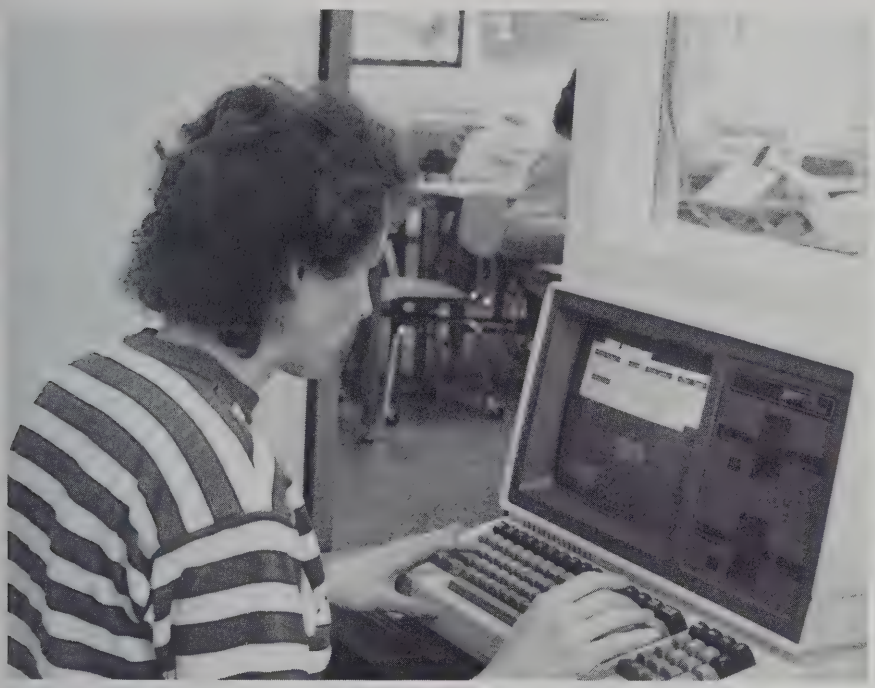
Computer Literacy was a new class offered to seniors as Garrett County Schools received their first introduction to computers. The course was designed to give students a better understanding of computer programming and help to prepare them for a work force which is becoming highly computerized. Computers were also used in the office to print daily bulletins and special announcements. Various programs were also worked on to record attendance records. The computers were well received by students and faculty who had for sometime been waiting for their arrival.

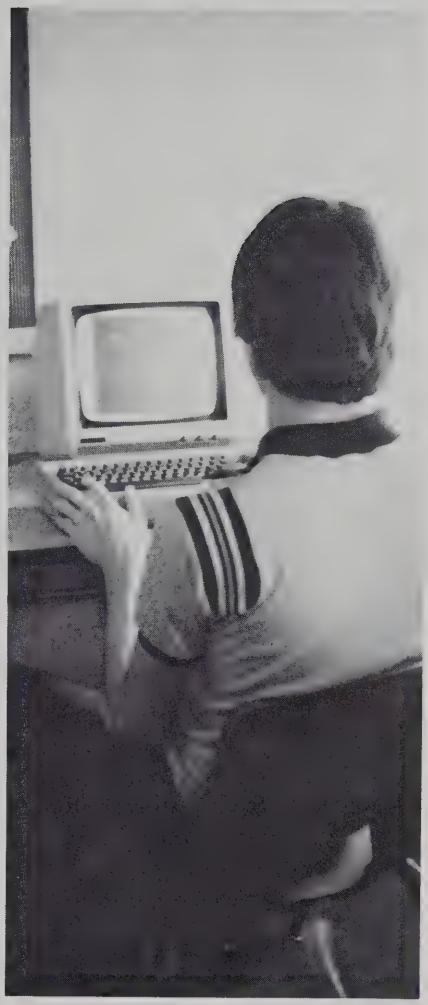


Jeff Graham and Seth Brandes work together on a math program.

New Learning Opportunities

Mrs. Donetta Nice types in a new program to use in Business Practice.





Relaxing at the end of the period, Darrell Yoder enjoys a computer game.

Using a computerized typewriter, Kim Moore corrects an error.

Valuable Skills Are Gained

Jeff Glotfelty and Tony Warnick display their craftsmanship in Auto Mechanics.

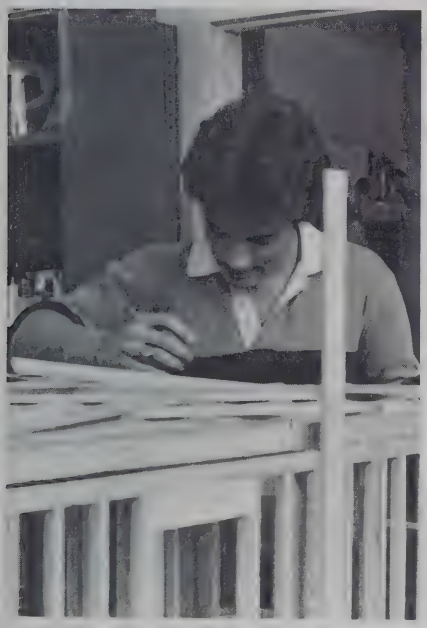
Vocational education provided an alternative to college prep studies. Students were able to gain future vocational career experience through different projects. One of these projects were utility buildings or doll houses which were built by Building Trade students to raise money for Ski Club and Building Trades. While students gained important future skills, they were also able to enjoy working with their hands and seeing their accomplishments.

As a new means of raising money, Building Trades constructed doll houses.

Through Vocational Classes

Mike Meyers adds the finishing touches to his model frame house.

Using his Building Trade skills Brent Fratz constructs a desk for his personal use.



Charlie Beiler works with precision while measuring strips for this project.

Working with intensity, John Kaiser and Greg Diehl repair a computer in Electronics class.

Cross Country Skiing Added To

As a Phys. Ed. assistant, Carissa Selby demonstrates the downhill.

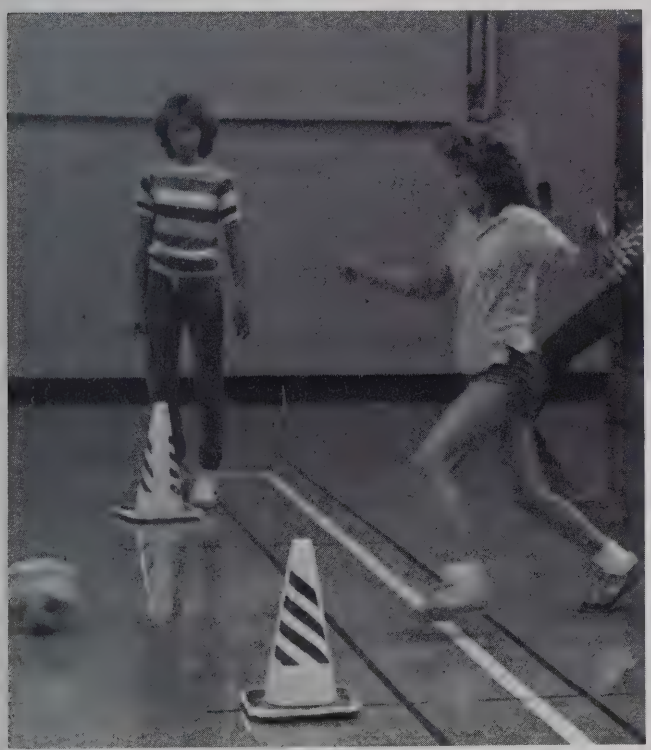
In fourth period Phys. Ed. class, the boys prepare for a game of scrimmage.

Mr. Perfetti assists Mrs. Robinson with the instruction of Cross Country Skiing.

Physical Education Curriculum

While his teammates wait with anticipation, John Lawson attempts a foul shot.

Adding a new interest, cross country skiing was introduced to phys. ed. classes. The sport was new to many students and provided a break from the regular winter sports. Students were able to enjoy vigorous outdoor activities during the winter months. Becoming increasingly popular, such activities as gymnastics, weightlifting, and ping pong were offered along with the traditional volleyball, basketball, softball and football. Although physical education is only required in ninth grade, many other students opted to continue the class throughout their sophomore, junior and senior years.



In hopes of adding strength to her phys. ed. team, April Thomas takes her turn at kicking the ball.

During practice drills, Wayne Tabor refines his passing skills.

Students Mix Business

Teresa Holliday and Christine Rounds prepare a Combination Journal in Accounting.

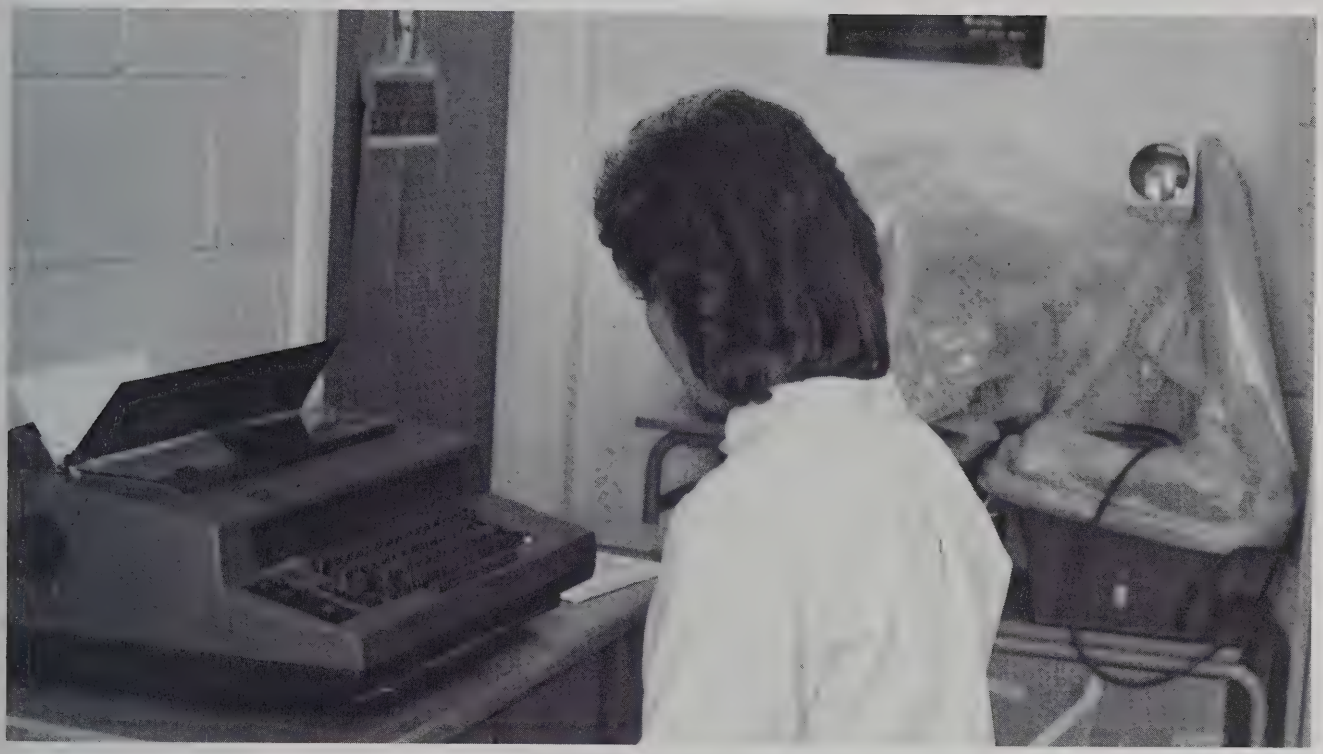
Searching their minds, fourth period Accounting students review for a test.

As a guest speaker, Mr. LaRue, a representative of the FBI, discusses governmental procedures.

During sixth period, Mrs. Donetta Nice esplains the different types of letter forms to the typing class.

With Pleasure

As a guidance office assistant, Kim Moore prepares to type the baseball roster.



Using an electronic calculator, Lisa Maust completes business problems.

Business classes provided training for students pursuing careers in the business field. Such classes as Typing I and II, Shorthand I and II, Accounting, General Business Training, and Office Practice were offered. Students also enjoyed outside speakers from the FBI and the First United National Bank. On April 25, thirty-one students traveled to Washington, D.C. where they toured the Justice Department and various other points of interest.

At the Southern Maryland Tournament of Bands, Amy Wellborn proudly accepts the third place trophy on behalf of the band.

The band experienced a large growth and enjoyed their first successful year of field competitions. They received several trophies for their field show and parade performances. They, along with the chorus, traveled to local elementary schools presenting Christmas concerts. They also presented their annual spring concert to the public on April 19.

Along with Band and Chorus, General Music Class was offered. Students studied the history of music and learned to play the guitar. The course covered classical, jazz, and modern day rock music.

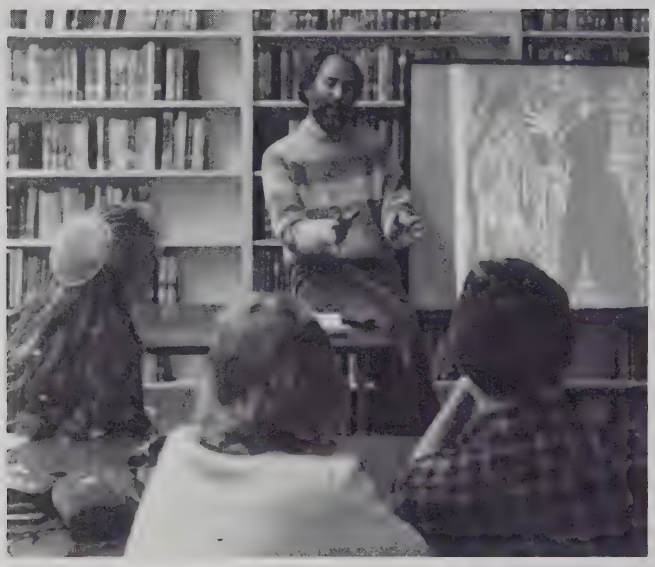
Professor of Art History at Frostburg State College, Dr. Jose Rodeiro discusses American Folk Art painting with Art III and IV students.



Art II students work on a problem concerning Surrealism, taught by Linda Buchannan, art student teacher.

A four-month program that was studied by the Art III and IV classes was based on American Folk Art. "This project was made possible by a grant from the Maryland Humanities Council, an affliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities," said art teacher, Mrs. Maggie Pratt. During the program there were visitors who came in to demonstrate and lecture on different aspects of Folk Art. The art classes visited the National Museum of Art in Washington, D.C., on April 27. Students tried their skill with painting, basketry, schnerenschnitte, and chip carving. Having these demonstrations helped widen the boundaries of student interpretation of Folk Art.

A professional art teacher, Mr. Paul Beal, demonstrates patterns for an antique carving process which can be used on furniture and other wood surfaces as decorations.

Observation And Performance

Industrial Arts student Mark Beachy glues and clamps boards to make a sign, while Lamar Beiler works on the early stages of a spice rack.

Individual projects were made by Industrial Arts seniors, juniors and sophomores according to their personal interests. Projects such as fancy cutting boards, paper towel holders, book ends, knickknack shelves, hand made signs and fishing pole racks were required by freshmen. These projects taught the students how to safely and properly operate the basic power tools used in woodworking.

Jeff Humberson helps Industrial Art teacher, Mr. Eric Perfetti, stack lumber as it is brought into the shop.

FFA And FHA Engaged

While Eric Otto observes, Dennis Friend, Jeff McClintock and Dwayne Fratz work on constructing a picnic table.

Watering some of the 1,880 dozen petunias, Sherry Eichorn helps keep the flowers fresh for spring sales.

The FFA raised 1% of the price paid for the Garrett County fairgrounds by having fund raisers. Some of them were candy sales, a hoagie sale, a quilt raffle and fruit sales. A major project was constructing a new green house and making an addition to the bleachers on the football field. The annual banquet and the presentation of special awards and recognition were scheduled for May 25.

Teresa Holiday listens patiently to Mandy Robinson, a preschool child.

During the year Future Homemakers of America had many fund raisers, such as poster sales, key chain sales, and a raffle for an afghan made by a former member, Fran Durst. Some of this money was used for a trip to Washington, D.C. and Virginia on April 27. A dance was held to crown an FHA queen. The Fashion Show was scheduled for May 6, and a convention was held at the Holiday Inn on January 15 and 16. Focus on holidays included a Halloween party and giving homemade Christmas treats to staff members. In a special program the Home Ec. IV class worked with 14 preschool children for 2.5 hours to study their habits and reactions in a group.

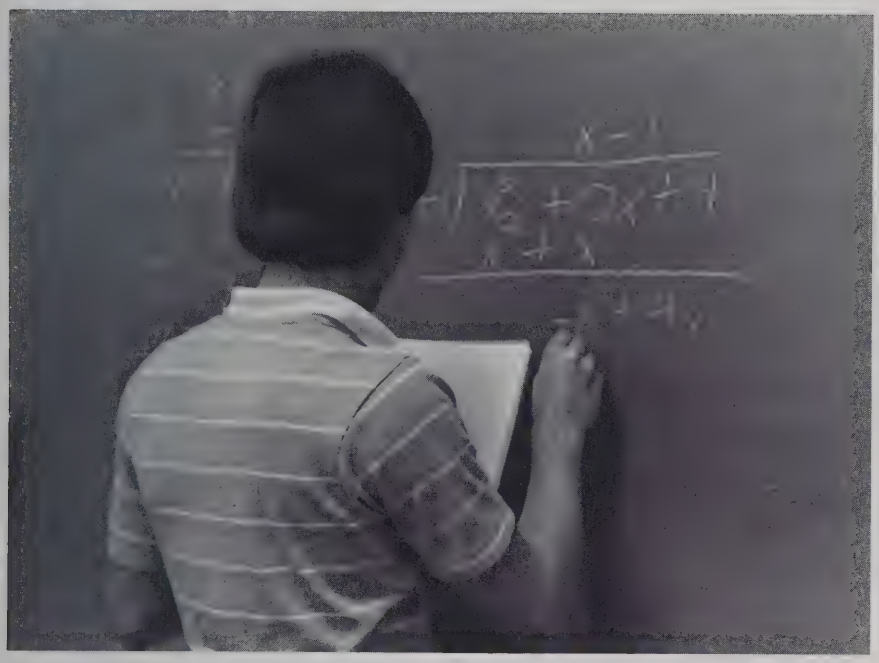
Variety Of Electives

Chris Sisler demonstrates his method of solving an Algebra problem on the board.



Students were able to choose from a diverse range of electives. Computer Literacy was a new elective offered to seniors. Students studied basic computer language and programming. In other electives such as Family Life, Psychology, and Contemporary Problems, self-image and family planning were discussed. In March, Mr. Martin Green and Mr. Eugene Pustolski took science and advanced math students to Baltimore. There they visited the National Aquarium and the Maryland Science Center.

During Viking class, Lisa Zuckerman and Brenda Beiler proofread an article.

Journalism was an elective offered fourth period to students with advanced English skills. Student duties ranged from writing paragraphs and articles and reporting to photography. The yearbook recorded school activities throughout the year under the direction of Miss Miller and student editor Mike Thomas.

The Viking consisted of seven issues covering current events and student issues and opinions. Amy Wellborn was the student editor, and Mrs. Sines was the advisor.

Student Projects Displayed At Excellence Fair

Tim Ruggiero watches his project on hydroponics.

Jenny Dailey displays her computer program on volcanic activity which recieved first place.

The Excellence Fair was held on April 26 in the school gymnasium. The fair provided an outlet for students to show their ideas and creativity. Students' work and involvement outside the classroom was displayed in various projects. Students were awarded ribbons according to a point system.

Trip Martin and Todd Bashore discuss their project at the fair.

ORGANIZATIONS

Students Gain "A

"A look inside!" This theme ran through the minds of yearbook staff members as they carried the responsibility for the production of the yearbook. Daily activities for these students included taking pictures, making lay-outs, and writing paragraphs, headlines, and captions. With nine new members, this team operated under the direction of editor Mike Thomas and adviser Miss Joanna Miller.

Operating similarly to an actual business, those who were active in making the school newspaper, the Viking, were aided by Amy Wellborn, editor, and adviser Mrs. Lucile Sines. Factual reporting was expressed in articles such as "Huskies win opener 53-54" Creative writing experience was gained in articles such as "Shadow of Miracles."

Cheerleaders Raise

During cheerleaders club, the JV squad work together to improve routines.

Although the year provided room for improvement in some sports, the cheerleaders kept the spectators looking enthusiastically for the next game. In their attempts to support athletes to the fullest, the cheerleaders designed spirit signs and were responsible for the various pep rallies held. Junior Varsity cheerleaders also sold football programs in addition to assisting in fundraisers for the student body.

Student Club Attracts Staff

Working on one of two major projects, Carolyn Georg follows instructions for finishing a design in candlewick stitching.

It was a small group of girls who signed up for the Lap Quilting Club, but they soon learned that their interest in needlework was shared by two adult staff members. Mrs. Diane Klotzbaugh and Mrs. Margaret Carlson, both aides, joined students at club meetings to work on two major projects—lap quilting and candlewicking. With the help of adviser Donetta Nice and her sewing machine, both projects resulted in the creation of handstitched pillow covers made by each club member.

Interested in learning the arts of candlewicking and quilting, Mrs. Margaret Carlson, a staff aide, attends club meetings and works on her project.

Participation in an organized girls' sport was the prerequisite for membership in the Girls' Varsity Club. Members sold hoagies and candy sticks to help purchase varsity sweaters and jackets. Each member also contributed $1.00 toward a group gift of money to the Holliday family who lost many of their belongings in the fire at H & H Hardware. In an in-county excursion, the group combined fun and exercise in a swimming party at the Grantsville Holiday Inn. Easter Prompted a flutter of group activity: the club met at Penn Alps for an Easter dinner, and in a fund-raising effort the members raffled off tickets for two chocolate Easter baskets.

Club Cooperation

Participating in the disaster drill at Cuppett-Weeks Nursing Home, Jill Margroff is a fake victim of bodily injuries.

The Health Careers Club, participating in the disaster drill at Cuppett-Weeks Nursing Home in Oakland, also found themselves doing various other charitable activities such as sending Christmas cards to those in the Goodwill Mennonite Home and participating in the Garrett Organization for the Handicapped Hike-and-Bike. To help them gain knowledge of different health problems, they had guest speakers throughout the course of the year, such as Dr. George Stoltzfus and members of Alcoholics Anonymous and the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad.

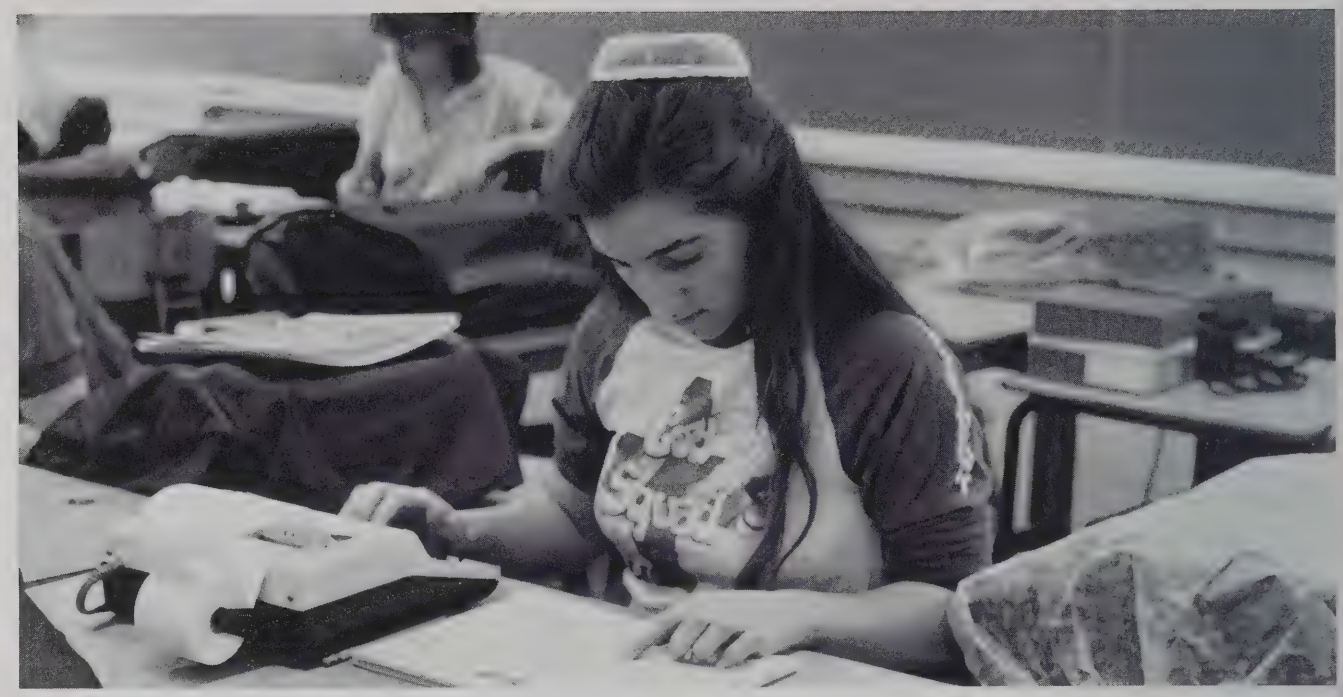
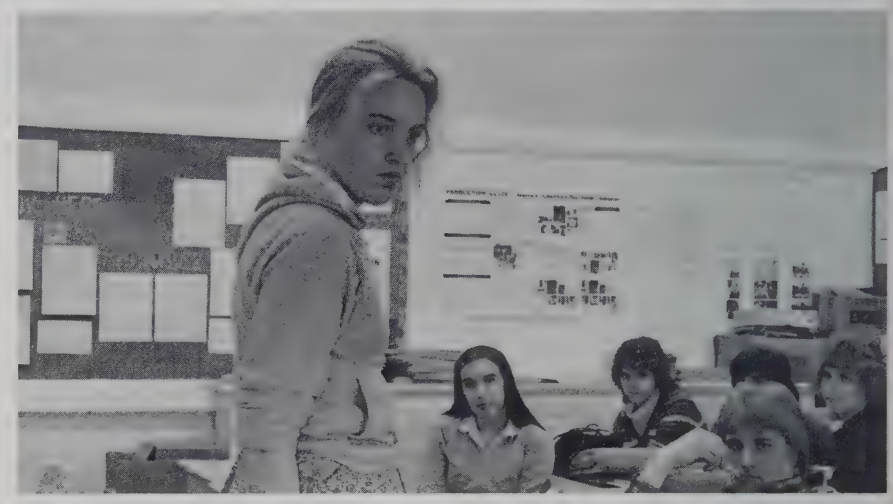
Field Trips Stimulate



Preparing for a meeting, Lisa Maust, president, makes a last tabulation of the club's financial status.

The God Squad arranged for a band to entertain the students on March 28. This school performance was free of charge because of the God Squad's efforts in funding. The "Watchmen" also performed in concert that evening for the public. In addition to this activity, these club members went on a trip to Pittsburgh on May 18.



Vice-president Twila Maust speaks to the God Squad on future activities.

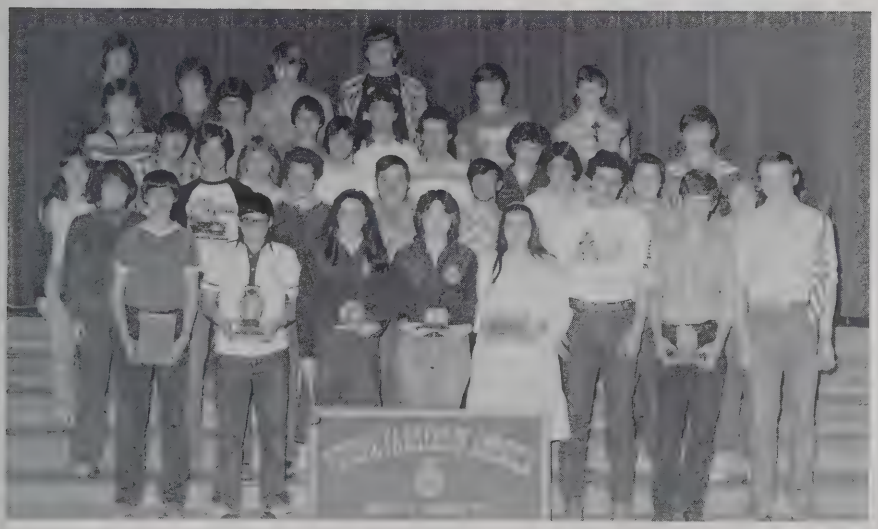
Club Activities

Dave Georg escorts Sandi Friend for the crowning of FHA queen.

Putting on the final topping, Mark Humberson and Rich Bender complete the planting of flower seeds.



The FFA planned a number of activities such as sales of sausage, citrus fruit, fruit trees; and rummage sale, baked goods sale and Mother's Day corsages. Mr. Loughrie's vocational agriculture class proceeded with a job to add on space to the greenhouse. The officers were: Sheila Bender, Berenice Edgar, Rodney Frazee, Joe Friend, Mike Meyers, Gary Broadwater, and Roger Wilhelm.

FHA members were involved in pursuing their interests in home economics. From intricate sewing patterns to development of recipes, they were given a chance to try their best at these activities. In May they held a fashion show which included all of the latest styles in clothing.

Relaxed Attitudes Make School Tolerable

On their way to G.C.C. for Career Day, Scott Watkins and Amy Wellborn find the seminar brochures fascinating.

Cathy Hanes enjoys her final moments as a senior while working on the yearbook.

The cafeteria provides a place where students can relax and talk with friends, as Barb Taylor and Connie Stewart enjoy lunch.

Accomplishments Reflect

For the fourth consecutive year, the Winterfest Queen has been a student at Northern, as Cathy Hanes, escorted by Greg Rodeheaver, takes the honor.

Many students acheived several feats which made themselves and the school proud. In August, the Varsity Cheerleaders captured first place at camp. Kim Habel, Becky Thomas, Sandy Friend, Cathy Hanes, and Sherry Kolbfleisch reigned over school and community events as queens. The wrestlers, placed three members in the state tournament, while the softball team finished the regular season ranked first in the district. The play and the talent show provided a chance for us to entertain the public. Together we worked toward doing the best we possibly could and making ourselves as well as others appreciate our accomplishments.

Carissa Selby and Darrell Yoder perform before the student body after many hours of practicing and rehearsing lines in order to make the play a success.

Self Pride

Carissa Selby, captain of the Varsity Cheerleaders, watches the team head for the locker room at halftime.

Accepting her diploma at graduation, Lisa Zuckerman rounds out the class of 1984.

Members of the band, under the direction of Amy Wellborn, put on one of their finest performances despite the bad weather.

Closing Out The School Year

For 31 years of hard work and service, Lisa Zuckerman presents Mrs. Sines with an award on behalf of the Student Council.

Vonda Handwerk and Connie Hoover add final touches to a mural painted by the art students.

The chorus watches eagerly as the graduation procession begins.
